From the Chairman's Desk

Hard though it is to believe, ITRHD is celebrating its 5th Anniversary! It thus seems a good time to take stock of what we have been able to accomplish so far, and to decide on our priorities for the future. A brief report on all projects follows, including some recent very good news on funding.

Maluti Temple Village

A major success story has been in relation to our project in the village of Maluti in Jharkhand. Members will remember that Maluti originally was the home of more than a hundred beautiful 17-18th century terracotta temples, but due to neglect and vandalism, only 62 remain that are sufficiently intact to permit conservation. These orphaned temples are not protected by the ASI, and were ignored by the State Government. Moreover, the village is extremely impoverished.

ITRHD realized that the Maluti temples were a unique part of our heritage that was in imminent danger of being completely lost. Moreover, we felt that they offered the opportunity for development of pilgrimage and cultural tourism, which could serve as the basis for overall economic improvement in the village. We thus offered our expertise to the State Government.

After two years of protracted discussions with State Government officials, we finally achieved a breakthrough. An MOU was signed, and all the temples were entrusted to ITRHD for conservation. The State Government also agreed to fund the project with Rs 1 crore coming in as the first installment. Through the good offices of the National Culture Fund in the Ministry of Culture, Coal India has also promised to chip in with Rs 25 lacs. We are still awaiting these funds. A major piece of good news has also been the approval of our request to the Airport Authority of India, which included 3 crores for Maluti (details on this are at the end of the report).

The Prime Minister formally launched the project last year on 2nd October, Mahatma Gandhi's birthday. An auspicious beginning, conservation work commenced under the supervision of a retired official of the ASI, but very soon a number of local self-proclaimed "experts" began to complain that the work was not conforming to conservation principles. They mounted a press campaign and shot off letters to the Government voicing their views. I therefore asked the Deputy Commissioner of District Dumka to constitute a local Advisory Committee which has been done. A senior officer of ASI also visited the site, gave a report and has promised to oversee future work. As a long-term plan to preclude further criticism and to make sure that the work is done under the most exacting professional standards, we have asked Abha Narain Lamba to take on supervision of the project and she has agreed. Abha is one of India's most respected conservation architects. Her projects, many commissioned by ASI, include the Ajanta Caves, three World Heritage Sites and numerous monuments, museums and historic habitats. She had also prepared an initial project report on Maluti, with detailed analysis of every temple. So there can be no grounds for criticism from any quarter.

We have now nearly exhausted the initial one crore, and have asked for release of the second installment.

In the case of the local Maluti "experts," as well as in some other projects, we have occasionally had to face village politics, which are alive and well throughout rural as well as urban India. Criticism of any positive development is of course the first tactic employed by opposing factions. To counter this, we work with complete transparency, ensuring that all work is carried out professionally and respond to mischievous attacks quickly. So far, it has worked.

Azamgarh Creative Cluster

More good news relates to our "Creative Cluster" project in Azamgarh District. As our members are aware, ITRHD's very first project involved the comprehensive development of three villages in Azamgarh District, UP, each with a strong and living heritage, and each afflicted with poverty and lack of basic amenities and infrastructure.

The village of Nizamabad specializes in a unique black pottery, often embellished with silver. These potters are said to have migrated from Kutch in the time of Aurangzeb and have been the recipient of many national awards. The nearby village of Mubarkpur, home to thousands of weavers of silk "Banarsi" saris with gold and silver zari work, finds mention in the travels of Ibn Battuta 400 years back. The third village, Hariharpur possesses a classical music tradition where every Brahmin family can boast of one or more vocal and/or instrumental musicians. This tradition has also existed for at least 400 years, depending solely on the training and guidance provided by the elders.

In Azamgarh, ITRHD has pursued a two-pronged strategy, focusing on specialized initiatives in each village, but also on developing the "Creative Cluster" as a whole. In addition to ensuring the continued vitality of the traditions and improving the overall economic and living situations, we are striving to change the often negative perception of Azamgarh, showing the rest of India that it is the home of multiple great traditions.

Specialized initiatives with the potters and weavers are enabling them to upgrade their designs and increase the range of their products, through collaboration with designers. To reduce their dependence on middlemen marketing support is being provided through Azamgarh Festivals organised on an annual basis in Delhi and Lucknow where they are able to sell directly to local customers. For the musicians, we realized that there was need to professionalize the training of youngsters, by setting up a music academy and recruiting gurus from nearby city of Varanasi to teach on a part-time basis. Currently some 40 musicians of or below the age of 20 are being trained by a well-known musician from Bihar. Further, in order to give these young musicians of the Hariharpur Gharana national exposure, they are given an opportunity to perform before music lovers during the Azamgarh Festivals.

Azamgarh Festival 2016, Lucknow

Azamgarh Festival 2015, Delhi

In addition to these heritage-oriented activities, we have programs in pace for women's empowerment, skill development and youth activities in Hariharpur. We would hope to expand these activities and are actively seeking sources of additional funding. A primary school that emphasizes on inclusion of students from all economic sectors of the village and especially on girl child, has been created in Hariharpur, sustained so far by donations from our members and friends. The first phase of the school building has been completed with support from the British Council and a group of young architects from UK, Norway and Japan.

Substantial funding for the music academy, the school and for skill development has recently been approved by the Airport Authority of India (details are at the end of this report).

Other Projects

An early ITRHD project, the restoration and conservation of the 700 yearold Dargah of Sheikh Musa in Nuh village, Mewat (Haryana) is nearing completion. Although the Waqf Board of Haryana had asked us to undertake this project, they failed to provide all the required funds. In spite of this, and in spite of new damages that were incurred due to earthquake, we have continued the project. We are hopeful that the funds required for the final completion will be available soon.

We remain committed to our work in the twin villages of Rakhi Shahpur and Rakhi Khas in Hisar District, Haryana, site of the immensely important Rakhigarhi Indus Valley Civilisation Archaeological Excavations. As this is revealing a site both larger and older than Mohenjadaro and Harappa, it will no doubt attain World Heritage Site status in the future.

After much initial work, we had managed to persuade Reliance Foundation (Mukesh Ambani) to consider adopting the village and supporting various development projects on a holistic basis. After showing initial interest by getting a socio-economic survey done and approving in principle the comprehensive proposals submitted for overall development of the village, their CSR Committee decided not to proceed further. This was a major setback. We also succeeded in getting the then Haryana Government under Shri Hooda to sanction Rs 1.75 crores for a site museum but apathy on the part of the State officials led to non utilisation of funds and its ultimate lapse. A similar fate awaited proposals for augmentation of drinking water for the village. Mr. Habib Rehman generously contributed funds and his time, to the plans for development of a tourist complex; we are awaiting further developments before proceeding with this. We also have underway a plan to develop some old havelis in the village, for potential use as tourism complexes. The village community and the two Panchayats have been extremely cooperative but the total indifference on the part of the State Government officials at senior levels has led to the funds lapsing for want of utilization, and to the frustration and disappointment of the villagers as well as of ITRHD. Nevertheless, we are exploring various channels.

In the village of Pochampally in Telangana, we had signed an MOU with the State Government (at that time Andhra Pradesh) for promoting the famous ikat weaving of this area. Documentation of the village, a feature film and a coffee table book have been produced by us within the budget of Rs. 13 lacs.

In Nagaland comprehensive proposals were submitted to the State Government for setting up of a living Cultural Heritage Museum in Kohima which involved follow up action on the part of the State Government, involvement of the Central Government and expertise from abroad. We had secured financial support from the Asian Cultural Council in New York to bring a recognized expert from Philippines to conduct a survey and work with us in preparing a comprehensive report to the State Government. This is at a standstill for want of any action on their part despite reminders.

In Rajasthan our efforts to keep alive the music traditions of the traditional Langar community are continuing with the involvement of Maharaja Gaj Singh of Jodhpur. After several visits and coordination with a number of specialists and other organizations, we are working on a viable project strategy.

Publications

Our Explore Rural India magazine, launched in 2013, has already come out with 7 issues. Although we have gotten much positive feedback, it has not been an easy task to keep it going. We have survived because of advertising support. Hopefully, this support will continue but different advertisers have to be identified.

A suggestion was made by one of our Trustees, K.L. Thapar, that we also bring out publications dealing with specific themes. We decided to experiment on this line, and Traditional Cuisines of India was the result. It was a tremendous success and the accolades that we received far exceeded our expectations. Demand for more copies is building up. Encouraged by the response and depending on the availability of funds we plan to have publications on "Rural Architecture" and "Oral and Folk Traditions in India". We welcome suggestions from our readers.

Other Activities

In December of 2015 a seminar, South Asian Vernacular Architecture: Challenges to its Continuity and Strategies for its Future, was successfully organised in Bhopal in partnership with the School of Planning and Architecture and the Indira Gandhi Manav Sangrahalaya.

ITRHD also observed World Heritage Day on 18th April, 2016 by Inviting Prof. Simon Molesworth, an eminent barrister and heritage expert with special expertise on Climate Change, to present a talk at the India International Centre In Delhi on "The Threats to Heritage." This was followed by a panel discussion led by our Trustees Prof AGK Menon and Ms. Laila Tyabji. Smt. Sheila Dikshit former Chief Minister of Delhi chaired the session. Prior to his Delhi lecture, Prof. Molesworth travelled to Jodhpur, where, at the suggestion of our Trustee Maharaja Gaj Singh, he presented a lecture to the faculty and students of the National Law University, Jodhpur. Air India was kind enough to provide us with complimentary international tickets for Prof and Mrs. Molesworth and Shivranjani Rajye Jodhpur, CEO of Jodhana Hotels, generously provided complimentary accommodations in Jodhpur.

Efforts are on not only to promote youth activities, but also to encourage the active involvement of younger colleagues in our activities and decision-making. In this connection, it may be mentioned that since I was unable to attend the International Conference of National Trusts (INTO) held in Cambridge, UK, in September 2015, I deputed Sangya Chaudhary to represent ITRHD at the Conference. She created a very good impression and actively participated in all sessions, as well as strengthening our existing network and making many useful new contacts. Later, she accompanied me to Bali for a meeting of the Asian Regional Heritage Group (see below), and then to Maluti to have a look at the work done on the temples. She will now be visiting the site on her own at frequent intervals. As she has expressed a desire to be more involved in the activities of the Trust she has been appointed, Director-Rural Development on a purely honorary basis, in addition to continuing as Editor of Explore Rural India.

Bali Symposium

The Indonesian Heritage Trust hosted the International Symposium for the Asia Heritage Network (AHN) in January 2016 in Bali. It was a well-organized three-day symposium with delegates from 13 Asian countries participating and provided an opportunity to strengthen the network in supporting our historic urban conservation activities. The Symposium was held in the Karangasem Regency, which is situated in the eastern part of the Bali Island.

It was decided that ITRHD should participate, represented by SK Misra, Chairman; Maureen Liebl, Trustee; and Sangya Chaudhary, Director-Rural Development. The last two bought their own international tickets. Accommodation was complimentary for the Chairman and Maureen Liebl; ITRHD took care of Sangya's stay. It may be mentioned that to sustain local economy we were put up in a very simple hotel as we were basically operating from a rural area.

The Bali Symposium brought much-needed international attention to the rich cultural heritage of the region and the need for conservation and sustenance of the intangible heritage assets. The heritage was on display in abundance during the field trips to the Balinese villages of Tenganan, Sibetan and Selat. Tenganan, interestingly is the oldest Balinese village and legend has it that Lord Indra selected its people to administer a territory that was conceived in accordance with his divine plan to be a microcosm of the world. The Symposium built upon the principles agreed to in the Penang Symposium of 2013 and resolved to strengthen the Asian community's efforts to conserve the rural heritage of Asia. The need for identifying the common threats was palpable in the group of delegates and the importance of the existence of a strong network amongst the participating organization to support each other and to learn from each other was recognized.

Our ITRHD presentation was very well received, and the event enabled us to make good contacts, which could be useful for us in the future.

In association with ICICI Foundation, a CSR initiative of ICICI Bank, we have started a project for training of youth of Azamgarh. ICICI Foundation has set up residential training academies all over India and selected boys, who are keen to learn technical skills and are sent to these training centres. The areas of training are plumbing, electrical repairs, cell phone repairs, refrigeration, marketing and selling skills. The target is the less educated group (not more than class 12) and below 24 years of age. The training, boarding and lodging are all free at these centres. The courses vary from 3-6 months. The Foundation has a tie up with industries like Luke Star Refrigeration, Cafe Coffee Day, Crompton & Greaves and others, who provide employment after training. Five young men from impoverished families in Hariharpur village were selected by ITRHD and we provided them with a stipend of Rs 1000 each. All have successfully completed their training and have taken on jobs with the concerned companies. We have now sent a list of 26 additional candidates to the Foundation and are hopeful that quite a few will make it to the next course, starting in September. We are grateful to the Patna centre of the Foundation for their support.

Operations

During the past year we have continued to have constant interaction with our members, Trustees and members of the Advisory Council. Regular meetings of the Finance Committee, Executive Committee and Trustees have been held.

The biggest challenge before us, of course, since the day ITRHD came into existence, is the need to build up our Corpus to a respectable level so that we can expand our activities and professionalize. We are continuing with our efforts to secure a grant of Rs 10 crores from the Government of India, pointing out to them that INTACH was given a grant of Rs 100 crores, three years ago by the then Finance Minister. The current Minister of Culture has recommended our case for grant of Rs 5 crores to the Finance Minister and the matter is being pursued.

We recently have had some very good news. Yogendra Narain and I had met the Minister of Culture more than a year back and requested funding from the Airport Authority of India under their CSR programme. Subsequently we had meetings with the Chairman of the Authority and submitted proposals requesting:

Rs. 71.87 lakhs	Establishment of Music Academy in Hariharpur village (UP)
Rs. 45.96 lakhs	Provision of bio-toilets
Rs. 49.2 lakhs	Construction of Primary School building in Hariharpur village (UP)
Rs. 1.8 lakhs	Skill Development
Rs. 3 crores	Conservation of terra-cotta temples in Maluti Village (Jharkhand)

Rs. 4.71 crores total

I am glad to report that all our proposals have been approved and the Airport Authority is now working out the modalities for transfer of funds and signing of MOU's with us and the Government of Jharkhand.

Cluster

Cluster of three villages in District Azamgarh of Uttar Pradesh The Wall Street Journal of India reported as under: By Margherita Stancati

Nizamabad, Hariharpur and Mubarakpur fall under the protective wing of the Indian Trust for Rural Heritage and Development, which is working to preserve their musical and artisanal traditions. If anyone has heard of Azamgarh at all, it's usually in connection to a terrorist attack.

But there's a softer, lesser-known side to Azamgarh, too. Beneath the surface, the district reveals a remarkable cultural heritage. The rural landscape around the city of Azamgarh, is home to a village of musicians, a village of potters and a village of silk-weavers.

Nizamabad

Nizamabad village in District Azamgarh, UP is only village in the country which specializes in exquisite black clay pottery. It is said that originally the potters came to this village from Kutch in Gujarat in the time of Aurangzeb and the tradition continues since then. In order to provide marketing support to the potters to reduce their dependence on middlemen, four Azamgarh festivals were organised in Delhi and Lucknow where they were able to sell directly to customers and earn big profits. Further in order to upgrade the design component, designers from Jaipur have been engaged to work with them and also to provide them with better techniques to improve the quality of their products.

Mubarakpur

Mubarakpur in Azamgarh district in UP is famous for the manufacture of "Benarasi Sarees", which are also very popular and exported to many countries in the world. Though there is no exact historical data on how Handloom weaving started in Mubarakpur area, but it appears during 14th century that cotton weaving originated in the area (As per ancient Vedic and Buddha Literature). Marketing support was provided through the four Azamgarh Festivals in Lucknow & Delhi.

The famous writer Ibne Batuta (of late 17th Century) has written that very high quality dresses which were made in Mubarakpur had been sent to Delhi and from there they are exported to various countries. During Sultan Muhammad Bin Shakaib Tuglak's Era (14th Century) there were reportedly 4000 weavers in Mubarakpur, who used to weave Silk Saris. During his regime the Mubarakpur has become very popular and the people from neighboring areas like Purasofi, Saraiyya, Rasulpur Area Sikri, Mustafabad also took up weaving as profession. Early 90s saw the invasion of power-looms in the adjoining regions like Mau, which is gradually reducing the handloom sector in the region

Hariharpur

Hariharpur village in Azamgarh district is well known for its long standing music tradition coming down from one generation to another amongst the Brahman families of the village. It is so heartwarming to see 6-7 year olds dosing riaz on thumri or dadra or practising on the sarangi or sitar or tabla in the early hours of the morning. They get their training from their elders. A need has now been felt for bringing in professionals and putting these youngsters under their care. A proposal for setting up of a Music Academy was accordingly drawn up and submitted to ONGC for their consideration under the CSR programme. A response is awaited. Meanwhile prospects have emerged of the Government taking up the project and if it materialise it will certainly be a big step forward. (show architectural plans).

In addition to the Academy, it was felt necessary to provide quality education at the primary level to begin with not only to the young musicians but to focus on the girl child also to gradually open up avenues for self-development and later self-employment. A primary school was inaugurated in 2013 at the nursery level with 70 children .Now in our second year the number has gone up to 100. We are no longer functioning from a rented building .The first phase of our new building is operational to accommodate the present lot but we are looking for sponsors to complete the building to meet future requirements.

Primary School in Hariharpur

In keeping with our mandate to regard heritage as a resource for general development, ITRHD decided at the beginning of our involvement with Hariharpur to accede to the residents' fervent plea for better school facilities. In February 2013 we were able to inaugurate a primary level school in rented facilities within the village, with an initial enrolment of 60 young students, from all sectors of the community. Faculty consisted of educated young women from the village, who were given intensive training in Azamgarh, Varanasi and Delhi. With the help of professional and financial support from a number of quarters, and with full involvement of the community, a new school building was designed. The first phase of the new building is now fully operational. We now are in the second year of this school and have 100 children at the nursery level.

The school has been a great success, with every village family now asking to enrol their children, and we have recently inducted several more residents as faculty. Families of the majority of the students are from the most economically depressed sector of the village, and more than 70% of the students are girls. No fees are charged; the school is operating on donations from our members and friends, and on in-kind donations from the community (food for school lunches, labour for construction activities, etc.). To accommodate the increased enrolment, additional funds are required for operational expenses.

Azamgarh Festivals

In 2015 ITRHD organised 2 Azamgarh Festivals one in Lucknow in March and the other in Delhi in October. These festivals were designed to provide direct marketing facilities to craftspersons (Potters of village Nizamabad and weavers of silk saris of village Mubarakpur) and exposure to the classical musicians of village Hariharpur.

The Lucknow Festival was organised in partnership with UP Tourism and ASHOK hotel provided the facilities on a complimentary basis for the second Festival. Public perception of Azamgarh where these villages are situated has been a little negative These Festivals brought into sharp focus its rich cultural traditions having great heritage value. The potters originally came from Kutch in the time of Aurangzeb; the weavers having a 400 year old tradition and finding mention the travels of Ibn Batuta; the musicians also carrying on from one generation to another for the last 400 years.

Rakhigarhi

Rakhigarhi in Haryana is one of the important projects taken up by ITRHD. It is a site of the ancient Indus Valley Civilization and said to be larger than Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa and perhaps predating it by 1000 years. While the ASI is involved in excavation of the site, ITRHD's role is on taking up developmental activities in the village, for which a comprehensive plan of action has been drawn up. Efforts are being made to secure corporate support. There are a number of old dilapidated buildings in the Mughal style which ITRHD would like to restore and convert them for reuse as tourist lodges, gift shops, museums, research centres etc. This would give a distinct character to the village.

As regards details of Rakhigarhi, it will be interesting to note what the Wikipedia has to say.

Rakhigarhi, or Rakhi Garhi (Hindi: Rakhi Shahpur + Rakhi Khas), is a village in Hisar District in the state of Haryana in India, situated in the north-west about 150 kilometers from Delhi. In 1963, archaeologists discovered that this place was the site of the largest known city of the Indus-Sarasvati civilization, much larger and ancient than Harappa and Mohenjodaro sites. It is situated on the dry bed of the Sarasvati river, which is believed to have once flown through this place and dried up by 2000 BC. According to the archaeologists, Rakhigarhi is an ideal nucleus from where the Harappan civilisation began in the Ghaggar basin in Haryana and gradually grew from here and slowly expanded to the Indus valley.

Excavation

Since 1997 the Archaeological Survey of India has undertaken a detailed excavation of the site, revealing the size of the lost city (at least 3.0 km²) and recovering numerous artefacts, some over 5,000 years old. Rakhigarhi was occupied at Early Harappan times. Evidence of paved roads, drainage system, large rainwater collection, storage system, terracotta bricks, statue production, and skilled working of bronze and precious metals have been uncovered. Jewellery, including bangles made from terracotta, conch shells, gold, and semi-precious stones, have also been found.

There are nine mounds in Rakhigarhi which are named RGR-1 to RGR-9, of which RGR-5 is thickly populated by establishment of Rakhishahpur village and is not available for excavations. RGR-1 to RGR-3, RGR6 to RGR9 and some part of RGR-4 are available for excavations.

In 2014 six radiocarbon datings from excavations al Rakhigarhi between 1997 and 2000 were published, corresponding to the three periods at the site as per archaeologist Amarendra Nath (Pre-formative, Early Harappan, and Mature Harappan). Mound RGR-6 revealed a Pre-formative stage designated as Sothi Phase with the following two datings: 6420 +/- 110 and 6230 +/- 320 years Before Present, converted to 4470 +/- 110 BC and 4280 +/- 320 BC.

Area

Rakhigarhi is around 350-hectare (3.5 km2) making it the largest Indus Valley Civilization site in India, Pakistan & Afghanistan. In size, dimensions, strategic location and unique significance of the settlement, Rakhigarhi exceeds Mohenjo-daro and Harappa sites in Pakistan and Dholavira in India's Gujarat whose dimensions are 200, 150 and 100 hectares respectively. Three layers of Early, Mature and Late phases of Indus Valley civilization have been found at Rakhi Garhi. Findings till date indicate that Rakhigarhi settlement witnessed all the three phases. The site's antiquities, drainage system and signs of small-scale industry are in continuity with other Indus sites. But major portion of this site has not been excavated yet.

Discoveries

Digging so far reveals a well planned city with 1.92 m wide roads, a bit wider than in Kalibangan. The pottery is similar to Kalibangan and Banawali. Pits surrounded by walls have been found, which are thought to be for sacrificial or some religious ceremonies. Fire was used extensively in their religious ceremonies. There are brick lined drains to handle sewage from the houses. Terracotta statues, weights, bronze artefacts, comb, copper fish hooks, needles and terracotta seals have also been found. A bronze vessel has been found which is decorated with gold and silver. A gold foundry with about 3000 unpolished semi-precious stones has been found. Many tools used for polishing these stones and a furnace were found there. A burial site has been found with 11 skeletons, with their heads in the north direction. Near the heads of these skeletons, utensils for everyday use were kept. The three female skeletons have shell bangles on their left wrists. Near one female skeleton, a gold armlet has been found. In addition semi precious stones have been found lying near the head, showing that they were part of some sort of necklace.

In April 2015, four complete human skeletons were excavated from mound RGR-7. These skeletons belonged to two male adults, one female adult and one child. Pottery with grains of food as well as shell bangles were found around these skeletons.

As the skeletons were excavated scientifically without any contamination, archaeologists think that with the help of latest technology on these skeletons and DNA obtained, it is possible to determine how Harappans looked like 4500 years ago.

Fire altars and Apsidal structures were revealed in Rakhigarhi.

Hunting tools like copper hafts and fish hooks have been found here. Presence of various toys like mini wheels, miniature lids, sling balls, animal figurines indicates a prevalence of toy culture. Signs of flourishing trade can be seen by the excavation of stamps, jewellery and 'chert' weights. Weights found here are similar to weights found at many other IVC sites confirming presence of standardized weight systems.

Cotton cloth traces preserved on silver or bronze objects were known from Rakhigarhi, Chanhudaro and Harappa.An impressive number of stamps seals were also found at this site.

Hakra ware

The site has thick deposits of 'Hakra Ware' (typical of settlements dating back before the early phases of Indus Valley and dried up Sarasvati river valley). It also has 'Early and 'Mature' Harappan artefacts. The solid presence of the Hakra Ware culture raises the important question: "Did the Indus civilization come later than it is recorded?" The Hakra and the Early phases are separated by more than 500–600 years and the Hakra people are considered to be the earliest Indus inhabitants. Although the carbon-14 dating results are awaited, based on the thick layers of Hakra Ware at Rakhigarhi, it is said that the site may date back to about 2500 BC to 3000 BC.

Granary

A granary belonging to mature Harappan phase (2600 BCE to 2000 BCE) has been found here. Granary is made up of mud-bricks with a floor of ramped earth plastered with mud. It has 7 rectangular or square chambers. Significant traces of lime & decompossed grass are found on the lower portion of the granary wall indicating that it can also be the storehouse of grains with lime used as insecticide & grass used to prevent entry of moisture. Looking at the size, it appears to be a public granary or a private granary of elites.

Cemetery

A Cemetery of Mature Harappan period is discovered at Rakhigarhi, with eight graves found. Often brick covered grave pits had wooden coffin in one case. Different type of grave pits were undercut to form an earthen overhang and body was placed below this; and then top of grave was filled with bricks to form a roof structure over the grave.

Parasite eggs which once existed in the stomach of those buried were found in the burial sites along with human skeletans. Analysis of Human DNA obtained from human bones as well as analysis of parasite & animal DNA will be done to assert the origins of these people.

Dargah of Sheikh Musa

Tucked away at the foot of Aravallis, Sheikh Musa Dargah at Nuh in Haryana's Mewat district attracts devotees from across north India.

According to Wikipedia Sheikh Musa was the grandson of Sufi Saint Baba Farid who settled in Nuh, Haryana in search of peace in early 14th century. Locals say he was a lieutenant of Hazrat Nizamuddin Auliya. Devotees visit the dargah and take back 'holy water' emerging from a ditch near his mazr. It is believed that bathing in the water removes warts and treats other ailments.

The main gateway to the Dargah complex, called Sadar Darwaza, was in a shambles till last year. The stones and lime mortar were falling apart and the tomb could come down any day. In an MoU signed with the Haryana Wakf Board, ITRHD has taken up the work of restoration under its architect Preeti Harit with time to time supervision by Prof. AGK Menon.

The historical gate that shows a confluence between Mughal and Rajput architecture with an arch and tomb as well as balconies, is now being restored to its original glory.

The total cost for restoration after it is completed would amount to about Rs. 50-52 lakhs excluding payment to the architect and administrative expenses.

Nagaland

ITRHD with support from the Asian Cultural Council in New York secured the services of a consultant, Augusto Villalon from Philippines for drawing up plans for setting up of a living Cultural Heritage Museum in Kohima, Nagaland. After visits to various sites in the State and discussions with State Government officials a very detailed Project Proposal was submitted to the State Govt. For purposes of implementation the Proposal envisaged action on the part of the State Government on a number of issues, and by the Government of India on matters relating to them. Recommendations were also made where international agencies could also be approached for necessary support primarily in areas relating to equipment and technical expertise. Necessary action was in the first instance to be initiated by the State Government with follow up support being provided by ITRHD. Unfortunately, despite reminders, the State Government has yet to take the first step. We, however, have not given up and are pursuing the matter.

Pochampally Handloom Cluster

ITRHD signed an MOU on 10th January 2014, for the promotion of Rural Tourism in Andhra Pradesh with Dr YSR National Institute of Tourism and Hospitality Management (NITHM) Hyderabad. ITRHD then selected Pochampally, a weaver's village 50 kms from Hyderabad famous for its hand woven Ikat Saree for taking up projects. The proximity to Hyderabad offered possibilities of developing it as a tourist destination. A comprehensive project proposal was prepared in March 2014, submitted and subsequently accepted by the concerned authorities. Following which, a team of two young professionals of Tadaamyaham – the Design Studio, Vipul Bhole and Pallavi D under our guidance and representing us completed the following projects at a cost of Rs. 13.5 lakhs approved by the Institute.

- 1. Documentation and Survey Report of the heritage assets of the village and recommendations for rural tourism development, craft revival and tourism infrastructure in the region.
- 2. Preparation of a documentary film (Title: Pochampally: Weft, Weave and Wonder)
- 3. Preparation of a coffee table book (Title: Pochampally Handloom Cluster: Weaving Wonders)

There was no cost overrun and project was completed in time to the entire satisfaction of the Telangana Government.

Maluti

A small village of Maluti in District Dumka in the State of Jharkhand is a rare example of a living "temple village", with 62 surviving terra-cotta temples dating from the 17th to 19th centuries. Originally there were 108 temples built in clusters within a radius of just 350 meters. Out of these, 46 temples have disintegrated over the passage of time. The remaining ones are in various stages of decay and are severely endangered.

The architectural and historical importance of the village has been recognized by National Geographic magazine as one of the world's 12 ancient landmarks on the verge of vanishing and by the International Global Heritage Fund which in 2011 commissioned a comprehensive analysis of restoration needs by well-known Indian architectural conservation firm.

An MOU has recently been signed with the State Government under which ITRHD has been authorized to undertake the restoration of the temples for which funding will be provided by the State Government on a phased basis. Coal India Limited through the National Cultural Fund has also committed Rs. 25 lakhs for the restoration of one temple this year. Hopefully funding will continue to be provided in the following years also.

The history of Maluti extends back to pre-historic times, as has been corroborated by the discovery of pre-historic stone tools found in the river bed of Chila River, at the southern edge of the village. In the 17th century, Maluti became the capital of the kingdom of Nankar Raj, whose ruling family was very religious and philanthropic, devoting themselves to the building of temples rather than palaces. In 1900 A.D. the Rajas of Maluti gave up the title of Raja, leaving behind a legacy of these very beautiful temples.

The temples are built predominantly in the indigenous regional style of Bengali temple architecture, and display much extremely beautiful terra-cotta sculpture and decorative details. The rich carvings depict scenes from the Mahabharata and Ramayana, as well as tableaux from normal life of the times – tilling of land, worship, and various rituals. Some temples have inscriptions which are of historical importance.

ITRHD has also prepared a comprehensive study of required civic infrastructure in Maluti and the Government of Jharkhand (Department of Art, Culture, Sports and Youth Affairs) has indicated willingness to work with the ITRHD in developing infrastructure and facilities.

ITRHD's endeavour is to involve the community as a whole so that they become aware of the precious nature of the remaining temples and how preservation of these structures will create an asset that will regenerate entire village and they will become the primary stakeholders and most powerful custodian of heritage.

ITRHD plans to develop sensitive and sustainable tourism facilities and the temples once restored will serve as a new cultural tourism destination.

A breakthrough has been achieved with the signing of an MOU with the Jharkhand Government under which ITRHD will be responsible for conservation of 62 temples in Maluti. In addition, we will act as consultants regarding development activities in the village.

Conservation of a few temples has been complete with Rs. 1 crore sanctioned by the State government. Another Rs. 25 Lakhs expected from Coal India.

Barnawa Village (Barmer) Project

Barnawa village in Barmer District, western Rajasthan, is an unusual cultural habitat with 400 households of traditional musicians called "Langas," who have a unique style of singing Marwari desert folk songs. Until several decades ago, the musicians were unknown outside their own community, where they existed on local patronage, served as genealogists, and provided music and songs at all important life events. In the last several decades, they have been "discovered," first by the pioneering musicologist Komal Kothari, then by academics, then by more general audiences. A number of the Langas have toured and performed abroad; they have become a popular tourist attraction in Rajasthan hotels, and their music has even been incorporated into Bollywood films. Maharaja Gaj Singh (Bapji) has been one of the main patrons of the authentic forms, and by incorporating the best Langa artists into the RIFF (Rajasthan International Folk Festival) and Sufi Festivals in Jodhpur, and providing patronage for them at numerous Jodhpur events, has provided venues for continued viability and authenticity.

In spite of the increased recognition, and the money earned by the fortunate few who have travelled abroad, however, the majority of the Langa artists remain trapped in poverty, and the musical traditions themselves are seriously endangered. Bapji has been quite concerned by the deteriorating situation, and has wanted ITRHD to become involved, especially in the areas of preserving the tradition in the younger generation.

The unique importance of this area results not only from its rich music traditions, but from the way in which they are inextricably intertwined with a rural desert habitat and a way of life that has distinctive architecture, clothing, language, and crafts, all existing in close proximity with nature and animals. The music is part and parcel of this desert life style, and the area thus presents an extremely unusual cultural resource.

The challenge before ITRHD is to work with the residents on a holistic plan for sensitive and sustainable development. There is great need for creation of new sources of income, so that the younger residents are motivated to remain in the community and to keep their traditions alive. The traditional harmony between the community and the environment has been badly damaged, this needs to be restored as much as possible.

There are a number of issues to be decided in formulating a project, primarily revolving around the feasibility of various possible interventions. There is now a sizable Langa "outpost" community in Jodhpur, as well as in the village, so it is necessary to analyze the involvement of this in terms of sustaining the tradition, as well as exploring the feasibility of developing the village as a tourism destination.
