Chairman's Note

We are now in our seventh year and sailing along smoothly. As you know, our endeavor from the beginning was to work in villages that had strong, though often endangered, heritage traditions - tangible or intangible - and to help create sustainable viability for the heritage while at the same time focusing on its potential as a resource for overall development. We began by identifying suitable villages in six states, and launched projects in partnership with local communities. In addition to preserving the heritage assets, we have concentrated on infrastructure development, primary education, skill development, employment generation, and development of rural tourism.

Early Projects

From L to R, Shri Sudhir Kumar Tripathi, Chief Secretary, Govt of Jharkhand, Shri Shashikant Misra, Chairman, ITRHD, Shri Shree Deo Singh, Hart Ranchi and Dr. Manish Ranjan, Secretary, Department of Tourism, Art Culture, Sports and Youth Affairs at the Advisory committee meeting held on 20th June 2018 at Chief Secretary's office at Ranchi.

The response has been encouraging. We started with no Government support, instead relying on private donations and the generosity of our members. Subsequently we were able to inspire confidence in the Jharkhand and Telangana Governments. MOUs were signed with them for conservation of sixty-two 17th-18th century terracotta temples in the village of Maluti in Jharkhand, and for tourism infrastructure development in the Telangana weavers' village of Pochampally. In addition we were entrusted with the conservation of a 700 year-old Dargah in Haryana, with the support of the Haryana Wakf Board, the Haryana Government and the Archaeological Survey of India. Work on all these early projects is either complete or nearing successful completion.

The Creative Cluster of Azamgarh

Another early initiative involved three extraordinary villages in Azamgarh, U.P., each with strong heritage assets. Harihpur, with a long classical music tradition, Nizamabad with a unique tradition of black pottery, and Mubarakpur with thousands of fine silk weavers together form an unusual cluster of historical creativity. In all three villages the talents and the skills remained, though all were severely endangered, and each village suffered from poverty and lack of civic infrastructure.

In Azamgarh we have focused on strengthening the traditions, through design diversification, specialized training, and marketing support. We now organize Azamgarh Festivals annually in both Delhi and Lucknow, at which the artists and musicians from all three villages not only attract new patronage and new support, but also are creating new appreciation for the cultural riches of Azamgarh.

In the musicians' village of Harihpur, new performance opportunities and training programs for the younger musicians are strengthening the musical heritage, and the possibility of the Harihpur Gharana coming into its own seems within reach. Moreover, a primary school has been functioning for the last three years, with equal emphasis given to both girls and boys from the village. The day to day expenses of the school are being met primarily by annual contributions from many of our members. Local women graduates from the village community itself have been trained to take care of kindergarten classes, but there is still need for more qualified staff for the upper classes and particularly for English language training. The school originally started in a rented building but is now functioning from a four room structure made possible through donations.

The Airport Authority of India was kind enough to provide support under their CSR programme both for expansion of the school building and for a new music academy. They wanted State government agencies to serve as a conduit for the funds, and to date they have not been able to handle this satisfactorily. We are working to find a solution. Several skill development programs in Harihpur have involved nursing and teachers training, tailoring, cosmetology, computer training, and other vocational training. A Youth Club was established with the help of college student interns from Delhi, and is fully functioning.

In the Nizamabad pottery village, design intervention is helping to diversify product lines, and better packaging and marketing is increasing sales and income. A recent initiative funded by one of our foreign Advisory Board members installed a solar power unit in the village as a pilot project. So far this is working well.

The Mubarakpur weavers have benefitted substantially from their participation in our Azamgarh Festivals, with robust sales and exposure to new buyers. A long-term initiative here is focused on improving materials while developing designs, patterns and colours that satisfy sophisticated market demands. Gradually we thus envision Mubarakpur reclaiming the prominence it once enjoyed as a centre for extremely fine silk weaving.

Rakhigarhi Indus Valley Civilization

The twin villages of Rakhi Shahpur and Rakhi Khas in Hisar District of Haryana enclose the site of Rakhigarhi, one of the oldest and largest Indus Valley sites yet known. Excavation by the ASI was begun in the 1990s, but subsequently stopped. Due largely to our efforts, work was resumed under a professional team, and the State Government agreed to construct a site museum and some other facilities. Excavation has currently come to a halt due to negotiation with residents on an inhabited part of the site.

Meanwhile, we have proceeded with work on several other aspects of community development. One of the most promising relates to solid waste management. With funding from IL&FS (Infrastructure Leasing and Financial Services Limited) we have been able to develop a program in collaboration with Manav Rachna University in Faridabad.

Government Partnerships

The grant of Rs. 5 crores that we received from the Ministry of Culture last year has allowed us to provide crucial support to several projects, although we are restricted to use of income on the corpus. For specific projects, we have found a number of State Governments to be supportive. Both Jharkhand and Telangana were early collaborators, and we have also had support from the U.P. Government for the Azamgarh Festivals. Currently we are in discussions with the Kerala Government regarding a very interesting project there.

A great deal of my time and that of several of our other Trustees is devoted to securing and nurturing these partnerships with the States. It is a laborious and often frustrating exercise, and those of us who have come out of government backgrounds must utilize all our experience and persuasive skills. It can take time, and in several cases we have been working for extended periods to bring State government support to fruition. Eventually, the successful efforts justify the effort.

and Legends of India, and the most recent on Rural Sports and Games of India. The last was funded by the Ministry of Sports of the Government of India, and will be distributed by them as well as by us.

Publications

Since 2013 we have published eight issues of our Explore Rural India magazine with substantive articles on a wide variety of topics from contributors both in India and abroad. These have been made possible by revenue from advertisements and support from friends and personal contacts.

We have also published three specialized books, one on Traditional Cuisines of India, one on Oral Traditions, Myths

International Partnerships

As a founder and Vice-Chairman of the International National Trusts Organisation (INTO) when I was Chairman of INTACH, I have been closely involved with all their activities. ITRHD was granted full membership in INTO soon after we were established, and I have served on the Executive Committee ever since. This relationship has been valuable to us in tangible ways (securing international contributors for our publications and advice and funding for some projects) as well as giving us a strong presence in the international heritage community. I, along with Maureen Liebl, Trustee, have been participating at all major INTO events, and Sangya Chaudhary, our Director of Rural Development, has also represented us at INTO events in Bali and the UK.

ITRHD Team

As an NGO, we depend totally on the commitment and dedication of our team. Our Trustees, our Finance and Executive Committees and our Advisors provide guidance and oversight, and several individuals among them have also provided critical financial and other support. In this regard I must especially acknowledge our Vice-Chairman Yogendra Narain, MJ Akbar, Harsh Lodha, KL Thapar, DV Kapur, PR Khanna, SSH Rehman, AGK Menon, Laila Tyabji, Anita Singh, Ashwan Kapur, Naresh Arora, Amrita Singh and Maureen Liebl. Maharaja Gaj Singh (Bapji) of Jodhpur has been a constant source of encouragement. These colleagues and friends take a huge load off my shoulders and have made our growth and effectiveness possible.

Archana Kapoor, our Member Secretary, is a tower of strength and her professionalism and financial expertise are absolutely critical. Sangya Chaudhary is Director of Rural Development as well as Editor of our publications, and her academic background and communication skills are extremely valuable. Several colleagues have contributed to the success of projects in various ways, and I must thank our Jharkhand HART Shreedeo Singh (whose contacts and expertise have ensured the success of the Maluti project), Shiban Ganju, S Krishnamoorthy, Harmeet Bajaj, Asha Rani Mathur, and Preeti Harit. Our former Member Secretary Pamela Bhandari continues to give us her good advice. Vikram Kalra designs and publishes all our journals and magazines, and tirelessly contributes his efforts to these activities.

Last but certainly not least, our modest office staff of Ambika Surendran , Arun Gupta, Gulshan Gojal, Neeraj Ganatra and Anil Kumar work with great devotion.

We are grateful to the State Governments of Jharkhand, Telangana, Haryana and Punjab for reposing their trust in us, to the Ministry of Culture for lending support to our corpus, and to the Archaeological Survey of India and the Ministry of Sports for financial help. We are also thankful to Alliance Français for giving us their auditorium and exhibition spaces and support us in all our endeavours.

I look forward to continuing support from all of you, our patrons and friends, in carrying the movement forward. To remind: our website is being constantly upgraded and is at www.itrhd.com. And finally a few photographs relating to our activities -
